It is a white odorless solid soluble in water and several organic solvents. It is produced industrially as a precursor to polyacrylamides which find many uses as water soluble thickeners and flocculation agents. It is highly toxic and partly for that reason it is mainly handled as an aqueous solution. What is acrylamide and how is it involved with food and In 2010 the EPA established an RfD Reference Dose for oral intake of acrylamide. Reference doses are amounts of daily exposure over a lifetime that can be predicted to produce no noticeable health effects. In other words as a general rule adverse health effects are not expected if daily intake.
